

Joint research department

The Joint Research Division is a base for collaborative research between the University and private organizations, designed to enable dedicated, sustained focus on specific research fields over a defined period, thereby advancing and diversifying research.

Joint Research Promotion Hub

This system aims to advance and further develop research conducted at the University, promote the utilization of research results in industry, and enhance the mutual development of highly skilled personnel by accepting research hubs from private institutions and other organizations into the University and promoting multifaceted industry-academia-government collaboration.

[Difference from the Joint Research Department]

In addition to promoting joint research on specific themes, this system aims to develop talent on both sides and enables the implementation of corporate activities such as in-house research.

Want to know more

- Information on the Joint Research Department https://airimaq.kyushu-u.ac.jp/en/company/cooperation_b.php
- Information on the Joint Research Promotion Hub <https://airimaq.kyushu-u.ac.jp/en/about/jointcenter/>

Contact

Industrial Collaboration Promotion Group, Academic Research and Industrial Collaboration Management Office
(Kyushu University OIP Science-Driven Team, Inc.) Tel: 092-400-0482 management airimaq.kyushu-u.ac.jp