

In October 2009, the Institute for Advanced Study was established with the cooperation of the entire university as a place where researchers with extremely high research achievements in all fields, post-professors, and young researchers who will lead the next generation of Kyushu University can develop substantive and advanced research activities. The purpose of the Institute for Advanced Study is to foster young researchers who will play an active role in the world and to return the results of their research to society, enabling the university to achieve outstanding research results that will lead the academic world as a world-class education and research center.

Mission of Institute for Advanced Study

- (1)Ensuring high standards in research activities
- (2)Fostering young researchers, who will lead the next generation
- (3)Dissemination of outstanding research results inside and outside the university

Want to know more

- Kyushu University Institute for Advanced Study Official Website <https://ias.kyushu-u.ac.jp/en/>

Contact

- General information on the Institute for Advanced Study Research Planning Section, Research Planning Division, Research and Industrial Collaboration Promotion Department 092-802-2322 ext.:90-2322